She has been acclaimed by major critics as an exciting and inspiring American artist who matches "her fine controlled playing to a commanding, sensual stage presence." Bernard Holland of The New York Times described Ms. Porter's New York debut as "technically robust and musically forceful."

Ms. Porter has appeared as soloist with many orchestras, among them Atlanta, Houston, New Hampshire, Kansas City, and Ann Arbor. She has performed throughout the world as soloist at major music centers including Carnegie Hall, The Kennedy Center, Suntory Hall and the National Theater Concert Hall in Taipei, Taiwan.
